note from the designer

" A dish, a vase and a candleholder. Three totally standard items. Items found in any home. Items we use. Items that come in countless shapes, sizes and styles. Though taking on such a task might seem a potential pitfall, it was still a compelling challenge for me as a visual artist.

Could I create a handful of everyday objects based on my other work? Rooted in the years and years of thought I have put into what art is, does and can do? Could I produce some cultural objects which, while useful, would also express something about the basic human condition and our eternally complex interaction with the nature of which we are a part and those patterns and movements that govern us and will forever form the basis of our existence?

The result of this experiment was the JAM series."

The many embedded angles of the glass series break the waves of light and create a beautiful interplay between the coloured glass and the light, especially when the vase is filled with water or objects - Nicolai Wiig-Hansen has also found inspiration for this design in his own fascination with the way light breaks when it hits glass and water.

Signal

collection

Signal is created by the award-winning design duo Panter&-Tourron for raawii. The sketches of the lamp were created in the duo's studio in Switzerland but the shape was only finally defined with the clay in their hands at the factory.

Regardless of location, Signal will stand as a distinctive shape in a room while providing direct or indirect light depending on how it's placed.

Cloud

Cloud

collection

Designer Nicholai Wiig-Hansen got inspired for Cloud by one of his father's – Danish artist Svend Wiig-Hansen – bronze sculptures. He wanted to re-create the emotion this piece stirred through the objects, as well as reference the clouds' transforming quality. The three products – a large vase, a small vase and a centrepiece – seem to shift shape, depending on their play with light and shadow and the observer's mindset.

Minos

Minos

collection

Born out of an assignment raawii had created for the design school ECAL, the Minos clock plays with the effects of light and shadow. The base idea was to create a relief one can watch for a longer time and see it transform with the changing surrounding light. Inspired by both old-times sun clocks and patterns naturally occurring in nature, the clock's labyrinthine-looking surface marks the rhythmicity of time in an indicative manner. In an age of acceleration, its subtle markings invite to slow down and appreciate time.

Blankets

Blankets

collection

The starting point of the collection was finding a medium to collaborate on with creatives raawii had in mind. Blankets were chosen on purpose for their longevity: when high-quality and properly cared for, they can last a lifetime. raawii blankets are produced in a century-old Florentine factory, using a special technique with jacquard looms. It allows for the creation of very complex patterns with many colours. The partially mechanical process requires at least two craftsmen working on a blanket at a time. With generous dimensions, the collection patterns are eclectic, ranging from strikingly graphic to more neutral, demure ones. Its high-quality, thick fabric is a blend of virgin wool and cashmere. Carefully sourced for its texture and longevity, it is worked and dyed in Italy.

Teenagers from Mars

Olimpia Zagnoli

note from the designer

"I've been working on this series of plump, abstract, colourful figures for the past couple of years and I still don't know exactly where they come from or where they're headed. They're human figures but they're also a bit alien. That's where the name of the collection came from - Teenagers from Mars."

Patch

Dana Arbib

note from the designer

"The way I usually start designing is I think of a historical design technique. I then study the technique and artists who employed that technique within their work. The technique I looked at was patchwork textiles, the artists spanned from the Gee's Bend, to Gunta Stölzl, to Louise Bourgeois. I consider the technique, the work studied, and how I would interpret it within my own perspective."

Brush

Nicholai Wiig-Hansen

note from the designer

"Many think of a blanket as a 2D object. However, it is a 3D one and with Brush it's about playing with the lines and texture to show this. The carefully selected hue combinations were painted with brush strokes when designing the pieces, which inspired the collection name. The blankets' two sides are weaved to show opposite colours - a "negative" and a "positive" side. The visual language changes depending on the chosen side- and how the blanket is folded."

care

These blankets have been intended to last a long period of time. It's significant to note, that extra care is required to ensure that their natural properties are preserved for future generations.

- Dry clean only

- The cashmere and virgin wool blend fabric can create pilling, with use. The pills can be gently removed with a dedicated shaver.

- Shake out and ventilate regularly

- Avoid sitting on your blanket, and keep it away from garments that feature rivets, zippers and other hardware.

- Use a wet cloth and cold water to gently spot clean stains as soon as possible.

about raawii

Founded in 2017 in Copenhagen by founders Bo Raahauge and Nikolai Wiig-Hansen, raawii is based on curiosity and their shared passion for developing ideas. Its aim is to create a platform for collaboration with inspiring people.
